

New clean air regime starts in dirty Delhi

India Air quality in Delhi was six times above the recommended level the day after stricter measures to fight pollution were introduced. A ban has been imposed on diesel generators and more bus and metro services will run to discourage private car and motorcycle use. Researchers estimate that almost 10 per cent of the city's pollution is from crop burning in neighbouring states.